

serenate

Songs of Love and Special occasions

eng

Serenades are a refined yet popular form of “street” music: a few acoustic instruments, a leading voice, and the art of stopping in front of a house, a balcony, or a table to sing a dedication.

Born in the alleys and squares of Southern Italy, they became a universal language of love: a song instead of a speech, a melody instead of a written note.

In the past, they had a very strong social value. They were used to declare love, ask forgiveness, celebrate an engagement, or mark an important transition in the life of a community.

In an era when words spoken “in public” were measured and feelings often remained unexpressed, the serenade gave voice to what could not be said. It brought poetry into everyday life, transforming any ordinary street into a theatrical stage.

The project originates from Neapolitan serenades, also known as “posteggia” songs, many of which were composed between the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The acoustic format allows for an intimate and immersive listening experience, ideal for theatres, festivals, and unconventional spaces, where musical storytelling alternates intensity, lightness, and audience participation.

The music comes to life in an essential and engaging form: the intense and warm voice of Irene Lungo intertwines with Marco Ghezzi’s violin and Bruno Galeone’s accordion.

Part of the repertoire draws inspiration from Romani musical tradition, and the project explores further cross-cultural influences depending on the context, the venue, and the curatorial line, while maintaining a strong artistic identity.

The ensemble is flexible and may include additional musicians according to production needs.

The event may also feature a narrator, performed by Giuseppe Semeraro, alternating the music with delicate moments of love poetry.

Among the great Neapolitan repertoire, timeless love songs alongside a few “gems” that captured everyone’s hearts in the post-war years.

These are serenades and timeless classics, from I’ te vurria vasà (1900) to Nun t’affaccià! (1908), from Dicitencello vuje (1930) to Malafemmena (1951) and Indifferentemente (1963).

The live performance becomes a theatrical journey: each song is a tableau, a dedication, a change of light. It moves from the intimacy of the serenade to more open and engaging moments, culminating in a brilliant finale where the audience is naturally led into a more festive dimension.

VIDEO

serenate

Songs of Love and Special occasions

Duration

1:30'

Line-up

Irene Lungo (vocals)

Marco Ghezzi (violin)

Bruno Galeone (accordion)

Repertoire

Neapolitan core /

openings to other folk traditions /

Balkan section

Production

altramarea.produzioni@gmail.com

mob. +39 347 8157272 Marinella Mazzotta

mob. +39 327 7372824 Raffaella Romano

www.altramareaproduzioni.it